“As the Head of Philosophy at a European School I used to think that I was quite well educated.

I wasn’t.

I went to a talk on sustainability in 2012 that blew my head off.

I only found out about this reality by chance. It should not be like that for anyone, especially those who are going to inherit the mess.”

Matthew Pye: Founder, Teacher, Author, Speaker

There remains a critical gap in the world’s educational programmes.

Can we really call our students educated if they do not understand the true dimensions and proximity of the climate crisis?

Modern education only provides a fragmented, superficial view of what is going on above our heads.

This Student Book is available entirely for free.

We are committed to the "Right to Know".

This Student Book provides a clear map of the planetary boundaries and how close they are.

All 16 chapters provide an authoritative, full view of the crisis.

Each chapter has a different "subject" in the background.
